"Good to Go: A Trevian Guide to the College Search Process"

Wondering how to begin? Worried about filling out applications? Stressed about how to keep up with classes on top of it all? Come hear insider tips from Anne Walsh, vice president for enrollment management at Macalester College, on how to conduct a successful search process from start to finish. Learn invaluable tips on how to explore college options, while clearing up common misperceptions of admissions and discovering how to best represent oneself throughout the process. Ask questions to a panel of 2017 grads to learn what they did well and what they wish they had handled differently. Start the year off on the right foot by learning how to best navigate the application process while still having a fun, successful year. Additionally, the PHSC department will provide an overview of our comprehensive, student-centered services, a timeline of developmental goals by grade level and our departmental philosophy on the admission process.

"Rediscovering the Liberal Arts"

While each student may enter into college with different goals for the future, most will agree that ultimately the hope is to find a career that will lead to personal happiness, fulfillment, and financial stability. This leads some to question, why study the liberal arts? The better question may very well be, "Why not?" Hear from Allie Teagarden-Monk, director of recruitment and admissions for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign about why degrees in the liberal arts can be a great choice for your future. We will define what the liberal arts are, what degree options are available, and what the liberal arts experience is like at a larger university. Learn how students are advised to market their skills and abilities, what employers value from liberal arts candidates, and current graduate outcomes for students.
