Preface to Finding Aid

This catalog to the New Trier Archives provides information on the scope, content, quantity, and location of boxes and files containing the records. The Archives are arranged by record group, i.e., creator of the files, and also by publication. For example, we have records of the Alumni, of the English Department, History Department, Theatre, etc. We also have yearbooks and literary publications.

Each record has an accession number (the year it was processed—number of collection for that year, e.g., 2006-10); a scope and content note giving a brief summary of the records and how they are arranged; comprehensive dates; quantity of material; location by shelf number; and file inventory.

To search for information, use the “find” function in Microsoft Word (Control+F). Keep in mind that this function is literal, so use as few words as possible to find a match. For example, if you search “performing arts programs,” you will not get a match; however, if you search “performing,” you will get several.

The finding aid is written in the order of accession number. Record groups processed earliest come first, e.g., 2003-1 is first, followed by the rest of the groups and ending with 2006-37. The materials are shelved arbitrarily, so in order to locate the collection on the shelf, the researcher must first check the shelf location in the finding aid.

Freshman Campus Studies and Controversies
2012-11

Scope and content note: In 1978 and 1979 and again in 1997 and 1998 enrollment projections indicated that the student population of the Winnetka campus would exceed 4300 in the next few years. Both times the School Board instituted a large number of studies and questionnaires to determine how to best deal with what was seen as an overload of the school. After much debate and controversy the decision was to reopen the Northfield campus as a freshman-only school with the other three years at the Winnetka campus in 1981 and again in 2001. This collection consists of various studies, questionnaires, and other material related to the reopening of N.T. West as a Freshman-only school. Please see related material in 2012-3, 2012-13, and 2003-5, boxes seven and eight.
